ARMY AND NAVY Y. M. C. A. ?

Movement on Foot to Supply a Great Need in This City

The arrival of the battleships at the navy yard carrying such big crews of sailors makes the fact more plain that this city will have to do something for the pleasure of the sailors and marines, such as is done in other ports of the navy.

A movement is on foot to this end by several of our leading business men to start this thing, which if developed will mean the exclusive use of some building for the comfort and convenience of the men from the ships. It is understood that the matter will come up tonight before the Portsmouth Board of Trade and Merchants' Exchange, and later the city government will be asked to help the matter out. If Portsmouth is to have these ships, the city will have to take some action and take it quick.

Should the people who are now interested succeed in the work, it will later mean an association in the way of an army and navy Y. M. C. A. or something in that line. Everybody could help in one way or another, and it is thought that the city could allow the use of the old high school, if it is not to be devoted to city hall purposes.

This is worthy of some consideration and let everybody think it over and get busy.

GEORGE A. SPAULDING

The remains of George A. Spaulding, who died at Grafton, Mass., on May 14, were brought to Portsmouth on Monday afternoon for interment in South cemetery. Mr. Spaulding was aged fifty-eight years, one month and thirteen days.

The remains were received by O. W. Ham and laid to the final rest.

NASHUA MAN DROWNED

Boston, May 18.—Lester Bennett of Nashua, N. H., is believed to have been drowned in the Charles river on Monday night. He was crossing the Spring street bridge in West Roxbury, when a companion grabbed his hat and threw it into the river. Bennett jumped in to rescue the hat and disappeared. He was twenty-two years old and was employed on a farm in Dedham.

HALE FOR CONGRESS

Washington, May 18.—It is stated here that the influence of the Republican national committee, as far as it can be reasonably wielded, will be for the nomination of Col. Frederick Hale for Congress from the first Maine district. A close friend of Postmaster-General Hitchcock said today that National Chairman John F. Hill of Augusta, who was recently in Washington, wanted Col. Hale nominated.

The same authority added that Byron Boyd, chairman of the Republican state committee of Maine, professed to be for Col. Hale's nomination, but that he was believed, nevertheless, to be friendly to the candidacy of Asher Hinds. Mr. Boyd and Mr. Hinds are personal friends, both being graduates of Colby college and members of the same fraternity.

The national committee feel kindly toward Col. Hale for the stumping work he did in the last campaign. He made a good record as a speaker in Michigan and Ohio.

NAVAL SUMMER MANEUVERS

Will Spend but Little Time in Visits to the Fashionable Resorts

For nearly a month this summer the Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Schroeder, will engage in battle maneuvers off New England coast. Headquarters will be at Provincetown, Mass., and the operations will be conducted in the vicinity of that place. The exercises will be on an extensive scale. Secretary of the Navy Meyer has approved a tentative schedule, which is announced at the department.

It will be a month of hard work and little play, all for the purpose of keeping the men and the ships up to a fighting edge. Probably the summer resorts will see but little of the fleet which will be practically the same size as that which went around the Atlantic.

As soon after June 15 as practicable the ships of the fleet will assemble at Hampton Roads and on June 18 the fleet will sail to the southern drill grounds off the Virginia capes, for maneuvers arriving there June 29, the intervening time being occupied in coaling at Hampton Roads, maneuvers will continue in those waters until July 2, when the ships will disperse to various ports for the Fourth of July holiday. The assignment of the ships to the various cities on the coast for participation in the patriotic exercises has not been announced.

The warships are scheduled to arrive at Provincetown July 10. There will be fleet drills, tactical exercises, torpedo boat drills, searchlight exercises, small boat drills, night attacks and the various operations such as the vessels would conduct in the time of war. Early in August the operations will be concluded and the ships will arrive at Hampton Roads drill grounds, and two days later record target practice will begin.

Sixteen battleships will rendezvous at Provincetown.

The first division, commanded by Admiral Seaton Schroeder himself will consist of the Connecticut, Kansas, Louisiana and Vermont; the second under Admiral Hago Osterhaus, will consist of the Minnesota, as flagship, and the New Hampshire, Idaho and Mississippi; the third, under Admiral Richard Wainwright of the Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey and Rhode Island, and the Ohio and Missouri. The commander of this division has not been selected to take the place of Admiral Potter, who is to become chief of the bureau of navigation.

With the fleet some of the time will be 12 torpedo boats, now mostly at southern yards. They will join in certain of the maneuvers. This is the idea of President Taft, who, while continuing the Roosevelt policy of naval maneuvers thinks the torpedo boats and the battleships should be trained in co-operative work. The torpedo boats to be known as the Atlantic torpedo boat flotilla will be commanded by Lieutenant-Commander F. N. Freeman, detailed from the bureau of navigation.

STATE TAXATION OF CORPORATIONS

Washington, May 18.—A union of the six New England states, dealing with state taxation of manufacturing, mercantile, transportation and transmission corporations was made public Monday by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporations. That part of the report transmitted to President Taft concerns particularly the six New England states. It is expected that additional parts, dealing with other groups of states, will be published later. A careful investigation into the tax laws of each state was made by Commissioner Smith and the results of the inquiry are presented in concise form. The report presents in a popular way a digest of the tax laws and methods of their administration. While, in a sense, it is a legal publication, it was prepared rather for the general purpose than for lawyers. It contains much of information particularly interesting and important to legislators and all other students of taxation.

Commissioner Smith points out that while the taxation of individuals throughout New England is on substantially the same basis, there is a wide diversity among the several states in both the theory and practice of taxation of corporations. He notes as particularly interesting the Massachusetts plan of taxation of "corporation excess," on the market value of stock less property otherwise taxed. It is pointed out, too, that Massachusetts alone succeeds appreciably in efforts to tax special corporations. Railroads, it is noted, are among the largest tax payers. Public service corporations are more often brought under new systems of taxation. A review of the six systems of taxation indicates to Commissioner Smith that the entire subject matter is still in an unfinished condition and will need yet further careful thought and consideration.

He says the following about the Hampshire:

The total amount of revenue in a little over a million dollars a year from the special taxation of corporations there is derived for state purposes a little over one-fourth of the amount. Through a construction placed upon the New Hampshire constitution, all attempts in New Hampshire to tax corporations upon an other basis than property have been abandoned. There is, however, a central state board which administers the taxation of railroad, street railway, express, telegraph and telephone companies. This central administration of the law as to these corporations constitutes the chief difference between the taxation of corporations and individuals in New Hampshire.

A large portion of the revenue thus collected by the state is distributed to the towns where the property of the corporation is located or where its securities are held. Under this arrangement the allotment to the town by the state frequently exceeds the town's share of the state expense with the unusual result that the local authorities collect and pay over to the state hundreds of thousands of dollars under the general property tax, while the state collects and turns over to the towns hundreds of thousands of dollars collected from corporations, but also leased and owned property. The two largest items collected by the state from corporations are from railroads and express, telegraph and telephone companies. A large part of the railroad tax is distributed to the towns by the state. The telegraph and telephone taxes are distributed to the towns by the state.

POLICE CANNOT FIND BARBER

Send Out Notices Giving a Description of Chase

DESIRE TO QUESTION HIM

Was Former Admirer of Miss Regester and Might Be Able to Throw Light on Murder Mystery—No Motive For Strangling Providence Woman Has Yet Been Definitely Found

Providence, May 18.—Although the police sent out notices broadcast over the eastern states yesterday, asking for the detention of the Auburn barber who has been missing since the day before the murder of Miss Laura Regester, detectives at work on the case assert that the barber has been entirely eliminated from the mystery.

This announcement followed a visit by an inspector to Rehoboth, Mass., where confirmation was obtained of the report that the missing barber was seen by several people who knew him on a trolley car near Taunton, Mass., on May 10, the night of the murder. This is considered as establishing an alibi for the man, as it would have been impossible for him to have been near the scene of the crime at any time Monday night.

That the police have not yet been able to locate the barber for an interview as to his acquaintance with the slain girl has aroused some surprise. He is said to have been an admirer of Miss Regester, and to have been a caller at her home before her engagement to Charles Douglass was announced. Then his visits ceased.

The police have expressed a desire to question him, as they have questioned all the young woman's admirers, with a view to getting some possible new light on the mystery. The notices sent out yesterday are headed: "Detain This Man." They give his name as Clarence G. Chase, age 35 years, height 5 ft., 5 inches and weight 160 pounds. His complexion is light, eyes gray, hair bushy and sandy; usually smooth shaven; dressed in black clothes, with black derby hat.

Thus far no motive for the murder of Miss Regester has been definitely found. The theory of robbery has been abandoned and that of jealousy also seems to have been eliminated.

The aged father of the strangled woman called on the chief of police yesterday and asserted the belief that a crank killed his daughter. At his request a plain clothes man was sent to protect his home.

CONEY ISLAND STIRRED UP

Sunday "Blue Laws" to Be Enforced Hereafter at Noted Resort

New York, May 18.—Gay, care-free Coney Island, where Sunday frivolity exceeds the combined frivolity of the other six days of the week, is in gloom. An order went forth from Mayor McEllan that hereafter shows may be in operation at the resort six days in the week, but no more.

Strict orders have been issued also calling for an enforcement of the excise laws. Heretofore beer has flowed more freely at Coney Island on Sunday than on week days.

As a preliminary to the regulations to come all shows requiring performers in costume were closed Sunday. This caused consternation, but the mayor's later action brought an outburst of wrath and the appointment of a committee to confer with the mayor.

The Green Flames. The greatest discovery of bonfire ever made was the result of the protest. A number of years ago a man named Aaron Winters was prospecting for gold or other precious metals in that American inferno known as Death valley. He had his wife with him, and they two worked together until their provisions were at an end. Then, bitterly disappointed at their ill success, they started back toward civilization. The first night they camped in ash valley. Here they lit a fire and prepared to cook their supper. Mrs. Winters called her husband's attention to the peculiar green tinge of the flames. He did not speak, but with shaking hands scratched away the earth and suddenly shouted: "We're rich, Rose, we're rich! It's borax!" He was right. They subsequently sold their claim for a very large sum.

Body Pierced by Wagon Shaft. Newburgh, N. Y., May 18.—In a collision between his motor cycle and a farmer's wagon, John K. McLaughlin, an employee in the local postoffice, was instantly killed. McLaughlin was speeding his new machine on a country road. The shaft of the vehicle was driven through his body.

Photographing Strikebreakers. Chicago, May 18.—Photographing of non-union carriage drivers is a feature of the cabmen's strike here. Ten photographers are posted at various cemeteries to snapshot reinmen who took the place of strikers.

Unusual Spring Weather. Winnipeg, Man., May 18.—Reports from MacLeod and Lethbridge state that it has been snowing there for 18 hours. This is the center of the coal miners' strike and the scarcity of coal is greatly felt.

LABOR UNIONS BENEFICIAL

But Manufacturers Think Some of Their Methods Are "Damnable"

New York, May 18.—An attack on "the methods of organized labor" marked the first day's session of the National Association of Manufacturers, which convened here. This arrangement of certain phases of labor unions, including a fling at Samuel Gompers, was embodied in a report of the committee on industrial education, of which Anthony Iltner is chairman.

The attitude of the delegates was made clear when the motion to refer the report to a special committee was made. Then Iltner offered a suggestion "that the committee to which the report is to be referred have the power to enunciate anything in the report that might appear to the members as improper or as an unfair attack upon labor." He added: "We do not fight the labor organizations by themselves; we consider them beneficial, but we fight the methods of organized labor—and some of them are damnable."

His statements were followed by applause and the motion was adopted.

BROKERS ARE BANKRUPT

Indebtedness of New York Firm May Reach Over a Million Dollars

New York, May 18.—In the appointment of a receiver for Tracey & Co., members of the New York stock exchange and the Chicago board of trade, Wall street had a million dollar failure with an interesting variation from the ordinary.

While no announcement as to the exact cause has been made, F. A. Benedict, the receiver, says that he understands that money lost in backing a local taxicab concern figures in the outside ventures. The firm has no stock exchange obligations.

The total liabilities are estimated at $1,000,000; the assets at half that amount. Both these sums, however, are only approximated and may be increased.

SUIT IS DECIDED AGAINST CASTRO

Found to Have Wrongfully Occupied a Palace

Caracas, May 18.—The first of many judgments which will be pronounced by the Venezuelan courts against former President Castro was rendered by Judge Ferreras of the civil court of first instance.

It was in the suit instituted against the deposed president by Mrs. Joaquin Crespo, widow of a former president, for six years' rental and heavy damages for the arbitrary occupation by Castro of the Miraflores palace in this city, which is the property of Mrs. Crespo.

A verdict for the full amount was given, and as the judge condemned the defendant to meet the cost of the trial, the whole affair will cost Castro hundreds of thousands of dollars.

MORRIS WITHDRAWS SUIT

Grieve Apologizes to Premier and Pays Costs of Proceedings

St. John's, May 18.—An apology having been made, Premier Morris has withdrawn the proceedings which he instituted against Walter B. Grieve, a merchant and shipowner of this city, who was arrested last month on a charge of criminally libelling him.

Premier Morris alleged that during the election campaign Grieve wrote a letter in which the merchant claimed that Morris was in the pay of the Canadian government and was secretly working to bring about the annexation of Newfoundland to Canada.

Grieve agreed to pay the costs of the suit and to make an apology.

JAPANESE CREW JAILED

Only Evidence Against Alleged Poachers Is That Furnished by Indians

Juneau, May 18.—The United States revenue cutter Rush has arrived here from Sitka with the captain and the crew of the Japanese sealing schooner Kelson, which was seized by Redoubt Bay on May 1 for cruising within the three-mile limit. The alleged poachers were taken to the federal jail. The skins seized on the schooner will be held pending a jury's verdict.

All the evidence against the Japanese is the testimony of a number of Indians, who told the authorities that they discovered the Japanese schooner inside the fishing limits.

AT LEAST EIGHT YEARS IN PRISON

Hains Must Spend His Time at Hard Labor

TRANSFER COMES TODAY

Court Says Jury Found Verdict Commensurate With Requirements of Law—Doctrine of "Unwritten Law" Subversive of Modern Civilization—Reduction of Maximum Sentence of Sixteen Years Rests With Governor

Flushing, N. Y., May 18.—Unless some unlooked for legal obstacle is interposed, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., who was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for killing William E. Annis at the Bay-side Yacht club last August, will be taken to Sing Sing today and will at once begin serving the sentence imposed Monday by Justice Garretson in the supreme court. The sentence is an indeterminate one, under which the minimum period of imprisonment will be eight years and the maximum sixteen years. His time in prison must be spent at hard labor.

JUDGE GARRETSON.

Counsel for Hains practically yielded to his immediate transfer from the Queens county jail to Sing Sing, when they announced that no application would be made for a certificate of reasonable doubt as a stay of execution. An appeal, based on the general court record in the case, will be taken in regular course, however.

Upon learning the decision of counsel, the sheriff of Queens county said that he would take his prisoner to Sing Sing within twenty-four hours.

In passing sentence, Justice Garretson said that the defendant had a fair trial and had been defended by experienced lawyers, and a jury found a verdict commensurate with the requirements of the law.

Of the "unwritten law," Garretson spoke as follows:

"That any person may assume to be judge and executioner for a real or fancied wrong done to him by another, society cannot approve and the law does not sanction. Such a doctrine is abhorrent to all right-thinking men and the practice of it is subversive of modern civilization. In this case the law of the state has been vindicated and the claim to a right to mole out personal vengeance has been again condemned. Further comment is needless."

During his imprisonment the conduct of Hains will be observed by the prison officials, and at the expiration of eight years the parole board, composed of prison officials, may recommend to the governor that his sentence be commuted to less than the maximum of sixteen years. The final action rests with the governor.

THOUGHT GIRL UNFAITHFUL

Would-Be Murderer and Suicide Fails to Accomplish Plans

Boston, May 18.—Accusing his sweetheart, Jennie Moldoski, aged 20, with being unfaithful to him, Teddie Zalko, aged 23, of Providence, shot and slightly wounded the girl. He then turned his revolver upon himself, inflicting two serious but not necessarily fatal wounds, at the girl's lodging place in this city.

Zalko is under arrest at a hospital, charged with assault with a loaded revolver with intent to kill. Miss Moldoski came to this city from Providence about three months ago.

LEPROSY PREVALENT IN PORTO RICO

Victims of the Disease Publicly Beg in the Capital

New York, May 18.—What is said to be alarming lately on the part of the Porto Rican government in the care and control of persons suffering with leprosy will be brought to the official attention of the United States government by Dr. Edward Ehlers, one of a party of four European experts who have been studying various diseases prevalent in the West Indies. He has just arrived in New York from Ponce.

Dr. Ehlers said that under present conditions in Porto Rico it is possible for many lepers to emigrate and carry the disease into the United States.

"In the city of Ponce," he said, "I found leprosy very prevalent. Two men in an advanced stage of the disease I observed begging in the market place. Something should be done speedily to obtain a better surveillance of suspects and a prompt and more thorough isolation of cases as soon as detected."

TWO SUPPOSED BURGLARS

Men Arrested in Springfield Carried Incriminating Baggage

Springfield, Mass., May 18.—Gus Palmer, whom the police declare is a notorious safe blow, was arrested here last night, in company with a man giving the name of Thomas A. Stanley. Both men were armed and Palmer is said to have attempted to resist arrest with his pistol.

Nitro-glycerine, dynamite, fuming caps, wire and a battery were found in the grips belonging to the pair. Stanley is supposed to be well known in Chicago.

The technical charge against them is carrying burglars' tools. They are suspected of having been concerned in a Boston robbery which netted $7000.

Strike of French Postal Employees Turns Out a Flat Failure

Paris, May 18.—The leaders of the postal employees at a mass meeting last night admitted that they had been bluffing all along. M. Pardon announced that there was nothing to expect from the outside unions, which either were not ready or not willing to strike.

A final decision with regard to the resumption of work, however, was postponed, and theoretically at least, the strike will continue today.

CASHIER MAY BE A SUICIDE

Left a Note Saying That He Would End His Life

WITH BANK MANY YEARS

His Hat, Overcoat and Glasses Found on Bank of Damariscotta River a Short Time After Telling Acquaintance That He Was in Trouble and Intended to Commit Suicide—Accounts Thought to Be Straight

Damariscotta, Me., May 18.—Leaving a note saying that he was going to commit suicide, Lincoln H. Chapman, cashier of the Newcastle National bank in this town, is supposed to have carried out his intentions by jumping into the Damariscotta river.

Late Monday afternoon his hat, overcoat and glasses were found on the river bank, but the search for his body was without result, a strong ebb tide having carried it, probably, far down the stream.

Since the death of his wife, over a year ago, Chapman had been greatly depressed, and recently the sickness of his children had added to his anxiety and worries, so that his friends believe this led to his suicide. Those acquainted with his personal affairs declare that he was not in any financial trouble, and that his accounts with the bank will be found to be correct.

Chapman had been cashier of the Newcastle National bank for a number of years, having succeeded his father, David W. Chapman, who is now 90 years of age, and who held the position of cashier for the greater part of his active business career.

Early Monday afternoon, an acquaintance saw Chapman at Lewis' Point, on the river bank, and Chapman, declaring that he was in trouble, announced his purpose of taking his life. His friend remonstrated and after a short conversation the cashier walked away.

Chapman was 42 years of age. He was a native of Newcastle, just across the river from Damariscotta, and had resided there all his life. Three small children, the oldest about 14, survive him. His wife's death occurred about Christmas, 1907. His father, a brother and three sisters, also survive him.

A "GRAFT" CONVICTION

Boston Politician and a Lawyer De-frauded City Out of $200

Boston, May 18.—Leo F. McCullough, former president of the common council, and Attorney James T. Cass were yesterday declared guilty on charges of larceny and conspiracy in connection with the buying of $200 worth of law books, ostensibly for the common council.

At a late hour last night McCullough was still in the Charles street jail, being unable to furnish bail of $2500. Cassidy was held under $1500 bonds which he furnished early in the day.

The bail in each case was raised $500. Friends of McCullough tried to raise the necessary surties, but were unsuccessful.

The conviction of McCullough and Cassidy marks the first of the so-called city graft cases to end other than satisfactory for the defendants, and as a result a score or more of men involved in pending cases, and many more, were thrown into a state of excitement.

MUCH PROPERTY SEIZED

Lumber Companies Charged With Unlawful Cutting of Timber

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 18.—A deputy United States marshal seized 5,000,000 feet of lumber, six sawmills and other property of the Hill and Walker-Hopkins Lumber companies and other small concerns.

The deputy acted in accordance with writs issued by the United States district court after an investigation by a special agent of the department of the interior relating to conditions in the timber reservation of the Cherokee nation.

MRS. TAFT INDISPOSED

Nervous Breakdown Will Compel Her to Take a Few Days' Rest

Washington, May 18.—Mrs. Taft is suffering from a slight nervous breakdown. She was taken ill while on her way from this city to Mount Vernon to see again with a party of friends and was hurried back to the White House.

It is said at the White House that there is no cause for alarm and that Mrs. Taft will probably be well again in a few days. She was unable to be present at an official dinner at the White House last night.

GLoucester Masons Are Out

Gloucester, Mass., May 18.—All the masons in this city, together with their helpers, numbering about 150, are out of work as a result of the strike of masons in an effort to add 50 cents to their present day's pay of $2.50. The masters refuse to consider the demand.

DEEMS MEASURE IMPROPER

Governor Draper Exercises Veto in Declining With Eight-Hour Bill

Boston, May 18.—Governor Draper's veto message on the eight-hour public employe bill was read in the lower branch Monday afternoon. At the outset he declares that the very title of the bill is a misnomer, because it is already law that a day's work for "public employes" shall be eight hours.

The substitution for the words "shall be requested or required" in the present law, of the phrase "required or permitted," Draper regards as "draconian," "needless" and "an unwarrantable interference with the right of the working man to work more than eight hours a day if he so desires."

He regards the penalty of a maximum fine of $1000, or a maximum imprisonment of six months, or both such fine and imprisonment for each offense, as "altogether too drastic."

Section 2, the prima facie evidence section, he says, is "absolutely unjust and improper, if not entirely unconstitutional."

The absence of any salary clause concerning contracts made prior to the passage of the act makes the bill unconstitutional.

In conclusion he says the act would drive much business now done in Massachusetts into other states.

CASE INVOLVED $100,000

Widow of Texas Man Killed in Duel Cannot Collect Insurance

New Orleans, May 18.—A widow of the heirs of a man killed in a duel or a fight that he sought, according to a decision by the United States court of appeals, cannot collect insurance of a policy held by the man killed.

The husband of the plaintiff, Dr. Franklin B. Maner, of Hill county, Tex., was shot and killed in a street duel by E. E. Griffin. The Penn Mutual Life Insurance company contended that the duel was precipitated by Maner and on this ground fought the case. The amount of insurance involved was $100,000.

The decision of the lower court was in favor of the insurance company and this decision was sustained by the court of appeals.

"MORE DAYLIGHT" QUESTION COMES UP

Will Be Discussed Today at Taft Cabinet Meeting

Washington, May 18.—A delegation representing the National Daylight association called upon President Taft and requested him to take the initiative in a reform movement directed against the clock. The idea is to begin the day two hours earlier during the summer to afford longer hours for afternoon and evening recreation.

It is proposed that on the first of each May clock hands be turned back two hours, the readjusted time to remain in effect until Oct. 1, when, with the later rising of the sun, the hands be turned forward to the present standard of time.

The president promised to take up the question with his cabinet today.

Aged English Novelist Quickly Collapses After Suffering From a Chill

London, May 18.—George Meredith, the novelist, died here this morning. He was out for his daily drive Saturday morning and seemed then to be in his usual health. A fresh east wind was blowing, and he gave him a chill. He returned home in a state of collapse, from which he failed to rally.

Meredith was born in Hampshire in 1828. He was educated partly in Germany and was brought up to the law, which he qualified for literature. His first poems appeared in 1851 and were followed in rapid succession by various novels and additional poems and ballads.

CHURCH NEWS

This paper in its editorial columns often quotes the opinions and ideas of men in positions of influence or knowledge, using them as subjects for comment or to supplement an idea of our own. This time, we simply wish to quote another man's opinion and say that he is right, and that we would be glad to have the fellow members of his profession profit by his ideas. The man is Rev. Charles Scadding, D. D., bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Oregon. He made a speech, the other day, at the Eighth Missionary Department church convention in Spokane, and he talked on the relations of the church and the press. The official title of his theme was "The Secular Press as a Missionary Agency."

Bishop Scadding intimated that the average minister does not know news, when he mentioned that frequently an item of vital importance is concealed in a mass of matter otherwise of not the least interest to the reader. In that the bishop was correct, as every newspaper man knows by experience. He might with equal truth have stated that the reason why the minister is not a newspaper man is that he has another occupation. The story would have been the same if the talk had been made to men of any other vocation.

The bishop told another truth when he said that the value of the newspaper as a missionary agency depends on the willingness of the ministers to go and make some effort in assisting it; "and," he added, "in considering the subject it is necessary for us at the outset to appreciate not the theoretical function of the secular press, but what it actually does for the people. It is the 'molder of public opinion,' after it is not even the leader; but it does supply the facts, the fancies, the fallacies, if you please, on which public opinion is based."

Then he told the fundamental rules for judgment of news value and for preparation of news articles and he told them correctly. But here is his own language: "In preparing matter for the press you should observe newspaper rules of composition; Tell your story in the first three lines—three words are better—and elaborate afterwards. Thus the reader cannot 'ring off' before you have told him the gist of what you have to say."

"It must be borne in mind that the newspaper, even though it has twenty-four pages, has not a single line to waste. It pays thousands of dollars for matter it does not print, and it is safe to say that no newspaper uses half the matter poured in on it by the press correspondents and the public generally."

"The great bulk of news matter is bought and paid for, though never destined to see daylight, not because it is not news, but because matters which the trained senses of the editor pronounce more important news crowd it out."

"Those same trained editorial senses are constantly on the alert for the important item. Just mention in the midst of three columns of really important church reports the mere incidental fact that Rev. John Doe has resigned, and be prepared to turn out of bed at night and explain to a half dozen reporters all about the affair. The next morning the line of resignation may appear as three columns, while the three columns of church news will scarcely occupy more than that many lines. The editor knows that only three lines in your article contained the real news of the day and would help the sale of his paper.

"Now, it cannot be urged that we should encourage sensational doings with the view of calling public attention to the church and its work. Even to a salacious morsel the editor himself would prefer a piece of news of an entirely different character, but he has his finger on the public pulse and he knows what is required. To me it is a certain indication when a newspaper shows a disinclination to give space to an article that it will not be read if published."

"We can assume a different attitude to the newspapers. We can take a generous view of existing conditions, accept the newspapers as having a right to all our news and show them that we are in sympathy with them."

"If we are to make good use of the secular press we cannot overestimate the importance of the making up of our articles and news notes. I believe that there is much of our work that could be presented in such dress that it would be attractive to the editor, and, consequently, to the people."

"I fully believe that the establishment of a news clearing-house in the eighth missionary department under the management of our departmental secretary, to whom missionary experiences, news notes and brief church teaching could be sent for general publication in the secular press, would be an experiment well worth trying."

Remarkable Barkentine.

While the sailing vessel is no longer the factor in ocean carrying trade that it was even a few years ago, it is still a power to be reckoned with and quite a little interest attaches to developments or changes in rig to compete with modern conditions.

The barkentine, a compromise between a square rigger and a schooner, received the most noteworthy addition to its ranks in the Everett G. Griggs, said to be the only six-masted barkentine in the world.

This vessel was formerly the British ship Lord Wolseley, being sold to German owners, who re-christened her the Columbia. The Columbia was dismasted in a hurricane off Cape Flattery and was towed to Esquimalt, B. C., where she lay for some months. American parties then purchased her and put her under the present rig, figuring that they would save several thousand dollars annually in operating expenses by so doing, in view of the much smaller crew required to handle the fore and aft sails. A British registry was secured for the ship.

Being narrow and long, many masts were necessary to provide a proper spread of fore and aft sails and the foremast was square rigged to steady her somewhat. It is the opinion of many seamen that square sails on at least one mast draw better than the fore and aft sails when the wind is on the quarter or directly astern, giving advantages over the schooner rig, while, on the other hand, it must be admitted that in beating to windward the schooner gains by point much closer to the wind's eye.

It was predicted that the Everett G. Griggs would be dismasted on her first trip, but nothing of the kind happened and the big barkentine has been making good runs, sailing faster than she did as a square-rigger.

who because of ill-health resigned as bishop of Peoria last fall, has been created titular archbishop of Scythopolis by a decree of the Vatican. The pope, in the advancement of Bishop Spalding to the archbishopric of this oriental see, has bestowed an honor rarely conferred by his holiness, thereby giving signal recognition of Bishop Spalding's eminent services to the church.

A training school for saddlers and for battery mechanics in the army will be established at Rock Island Arsenal, Rock Island, Ill., according to orders just issued by the war department. It will be under the direction of the chief of ordnance. Instruction in the school will be practical and will be conducted with a view to training saddlers to make or repair any horse equipments or harness on which they would ordinarily be required to work in their organizations, and to train battery mechanics in the construction, assembling and dismounting of field artillery material and in making repairs. The school term will be of eleven months, beginning August 1 each year. The classes will be composed of specially recommended enlisted men from various organizations of the army.

Since Nashua became a city fifty-six years ago there have been but three homicides from direct violence—in other words murders. In the of ill-fame one Sunday morning shot a man of whom he was jealous in a barroom conducted by N. P. Whittemore on Railroad square; eight years ago Charles H. Hawkins shot Mrs. Eva Brooks, of whom he was jealous, in a house on Cottage avenue. Each of these got thirty years. The third was the killing of George Marrotte in Pins and Needles Tuesday night, for which Theodore Baltasos has been arrested.

The Army Signal Corps officers have purchased for experimental purposes a German portable wireless set, mounted on wheels. The army has been using a portable set which is carried on the backs of animals and which is capable of exchanging messages at a distance of twenty-five miles. With the larger wireless set from abroad the communication is possible for a distance from 100 to 125 miles. The apparatus is mounted on a vehicle drawn by four horses and equipped with an extension steel mast which may be elevated to a height of sixty feet. It is proposed to try out this type of portable wireless apparatus, with a view to ascertaining whether it may be advantageous to add it to the equipment of the Army Signal Corps in the field.

The significance of the insignia of rank in the army has been explained as follows: "The second lieutenant just entering the service, is of course standing on the ground, at the foot of the ladder of his profession. The one bar of the first lieutenant is emblematic of the first round to the ladder that he reaches; the two bars of the captain, the second round that is reached; the gold leaves of the major are symbolical of the lower leaves of the oak tree that are reached in the ascension while the silver leaves of the lieutenant colonel are emblematic of the top leaves of the tree. The eagle of the colonel represents the eagle that flies above the oak, and the stars of the general are emblem that the engine struck him and hurled him many feet. An effort will be made to find his relatives.

AN ATTRACTIVE PAPER

Issued by Ship's Printer of the Battle ship New Hampshire

The Granite State is the name of an exceptionally attractive ship paper, issued on board the battleship New Hampshire. The paper is issued monthly, and the work is all done by Forrest C. Sheldon, the printer on the ship. Mr. Sheldon is editor and everything else when the ship is at sea, but for the June number he is planning a much larger sheet, and this will be printed on shore.

The paper is full of interesting news of the cruise of the big ship since it has been in commission, general news of the navy has a prominent place in the make up, and the general gossip among the men is well handled.

Wentworth is to supply the vacancy. Although not a winner at the Harvard interscholastic meet Saturday, the Phillips-Exeter track team made a creditable showing, and some of the performances were remarkable. Bingham, winner of the half mile run, is the first school boy in New England to cover the distance under two minutes. He broke the record of Manuel, the former Princeton runner, which was 1m, 59 3-5s., by 3-5 of a second. Burns Crandall and Cornell were also star performers. The chances for a good showing at the Yale meet Saturday, when a team of seven men will make the trip to New Haven are bright.

Bishop G. A. Guertin on Sunday paid his first official visit to St. Michael's church and in the afternoon confirmed a class of 94. The church was crowded, 300 seats being reserved for friends of the class. At two of the morning masses the bishop preached to large congregations. To general disappointment rain prevented the customary entrance procession of the confirmation class. At the last morning mass several young men of the parish escorted the bishop and other clergy from the rectory to the church.

The annual basket meeting of the Woman's Baptist Missionary society and Home Foreign will be held at the Baptist church here on Wednesday. An interesting programme has been arranged. It will begin at 10 o'clock by a praise service led by Mrs. W. O. Sides of Portsmouth. Mrs. E. A. Bickford of Exeter is to give the address of welcome, which is to be followed by a five minute reports from the circles. Addresses during the morning session are to be "Bird's-eye View of the Needs of the Home Field" by Mrs. A. H. Fuller and "Bird's-eye View of the Needs of Foreign Fields" by Mrs. L. E. Staples of Exeter. A basket lunch will be served at noon, and in the afternoon more addresses will be given, and also a vocal solo by Mrs. Annie J. Nason of Exeter.

The Exeter Musical club met on Monday evening with Mrs. Addie O. Kent. The principal attraction was the appearance of the Schubert male quartette of Boston, which furnished many selections. It was a most pleasant social event, and was attended by many invited guests, who were finely entertained.

The regular meeting of Gilman Grange was held on Monday evening when an interesting patriotic service was carried out. The address was given by the Rev. Raymond H. Huse, pastor of the Methodist church, on "Patriotism and the Farm." The musical part was arranged by Mrs. Annie Hudson, and consisted of selections by Judge Shute's orchestra and the Robinson seminary mandolin club. It was attended by many members of Moses N. Collins post of the G. A. R. and kindred organizations, to whom special invitations had been extended.

Several members of the Exeter Sportsmen club put in a period at the grounds on the Hampton road on Monday putting the traps and fixings in order for a shoot which is to be held on Memorial day.

AT DARTMOUTH

In the fastest game played here this season Vermont trimmed Dartmouth Saturday afternoon, 3 to 2. The trick was neatly turned in the sixth inning, when Vermont tore off five of their six hits. A wild shot at third base completed the winning combination and a trio of basemen cantered across the pan.

The South High school of Worcester, Mass., won the annual Dartmouth interscholastic track meet on Alumni field on Saturday, defeating 11 other college preparatory schools. One interscholastic record was broken. Keith of the Worcester South High school doing the one mile run in 4m. 28 4-5s., or 3 1-5s better than the previous mark. The points of the meet were divided as follows: Worcester South High, 18; Colby Academy, 14; Portland, Me., High, 12; Worcester Academy, 11; Tilton Academy, 10 1-2; Brooklyn, N. Y. High, 10; Stevens High, Claremont, N. H., 8; Concord High, 8; Manchester High, 8; Richards School, 5 1-2; Vermont Academy, 5; Amesbury High, 5.

VOLUNTEER LIFE SAVING
STATION TO BE ESTABLISHED
AT YORK HARBOR AND BEACH

Captain George Hill of the Volunteer Life Saving Association was here on Monday making arrangements for the establishment of a life saving crew at York Beach and York Harbor.

The project is meeting with the hearty approval of the residents of the Beach and the Harbor and all ready enough encouragements have been received to warrant the placing of a crew so that it will cover the two stations.

This is something that has long been needed at York Beach, especially where with the hundreds of bathers every day there is absolutely no safe-guard to prevent accident, and although this place has been very fortunate in the small number of drowning accidents, it has been a matter of rare good luck.

Captain Hill, who will be with the crew himself at York, is one of the best known life savers in the business. He is a noted swimmer, and has the record of saving more lives than any man in the business, for that is his business. He has had wonderful success at Salisbury Beach where annually, up to two years ago, the death rate from drowning was from five to ten, in the past two years while he has had a crew there not a life has been lost, a record that he and his crew are proud of. They have had some narrow escapes, but always managed to get the victims.

His idea now is to have the men stationed at York Beach and have at least two men patrolling the beaches. These will be expert swimmers, skilled in the art of rescuing people. At York Harbor one man will be constantly on duty, and in addition a fast motor boat of the type used by the life savers, will be maintained and always at call. This would throw a safe guard around both places and inspire the bathers with more confidence.

VINCENT CLUB ENTERTAIN WITH DANCING PARTY

The Vincent Club, composed of young ladies gave one of their pleasing dancing parties at Freeman's hall on Monday evening, which was thoroughly enjoyed by a large number.

The Wentworth and Marden orchestra furnished most excellent music, and a feature of the last of the evening was the singing of the choruses of the waltzes by Mr. Arthur Spaulding.

The floor was under the direction of Miss Mildred Chesley, the president of the club, and she was assisted by the members. The dancing was from eight to twelve o'clock and it was with a regret that the last dance was finished.

EARLY NAVY SHIPS FROM PORTSMOUTH

Editor of The Herald:—It would be most interesting to know just what became of the three ships built at Portsmouth for the Continental navy during the American Revolution.

The America, 74, built under Paul Jones' supervision, launched from Badger's Island, November 5, 1782, and presented by Congress to the King of France, sailed from this port June 24, 1783, and after a fine passage of twenty-two days, arrived July 16, 1783, at Brest, France, where she was broken up in 1784, only three years later, as related by me in the Herald of July 15, 1908. Complete evidence as to this fate of the America will be found in "Notes and Queries" of the Boston Transcript of July 11, August 8, and November 21, 1908.

But the ultimate fate of the Raleigh, 32, and of the Ranger, 18, is not yet known. Both were captured by the British. The Raleigh, built at the north end (Portsmouth) on Bridge's wharf, in 1776 (Adams' Annals), and first commanded by Captain Thomas Thompson of Portsmouth, was captured off the coast of Maine, September 28, 1778, while under the command of Captain John Barry, by the Experiment, 50, and the Unicorn, 22, and added to the Royal navy, under the same name. The Raleigh was captured first, and took part in the capture of the Ranger, then commanded by Captain Thomas Simpson, of Portsmouth, at Charleston, S. C., May 12, 1780. The Ranger, built on Badger's Island in 1777, which Paul Jones, her first commanding officer, had made famous, as related on the bronze tablet at the electric ferry landing near her birthplace, was added to the Royal navy, as the Halifax.

A list of the "Vessels of the United States Navy, and of the Regular Colonial Marines, Taken, Destroyed, Burnt, Foundered or Wrecked during the War of the American Revolution," will be found in "The Royal Navy," by William Laird Clowes and others, Boston and London, 1899, vol. IV, page 112.

This list shows that Paul Jones' famous Portsmouth-built ship, the Ranger, 18, was "taken at Charleston, (S. C.) by Vice Admiral Arbuthnot," May 12, 1780, and was "added to the Royal Navy as Halifax."

It also shows that eight other ships taken from us by the British during the Revolution were "added to the Royal Navy," viz., the Cabot, 16, March 26, 1777; the Delaware, 24, Sept. 27, 1777; the Virginia, 28, March 30, 1778; the Raleigh, 32, Sept. 28, 1778; and the Providence, 28, May 12, 1780, all "under same name"—and the Hancock, 32, July 8, 1777, "as Iris," the Boston, 21, May 12, 1780, "as Charleston, 28," and the Protector, (Mass.), 26, 1780, "as Hussar, 28."

Later mention of the Raleigh and Halifax, under the British flag, is found in the same volume. The Raleigh (built at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1776), was one of the British fleet under Vice Admiral Arbuthnot, which captured Charleston, S. C., May 12, 1780 (page 480).

"On March 20th (1781), George Phillips with two thousand men was conveyed from New York to the Chesapeake and James River" by the Halifax, 18, and six other ships. (Page 61.)

But still the question remains: What was the ultimate fate of the Raleigh, and especially of the Ranger-Halifax under the British flag?

MUSIC HALL

The Blue Ribbon Trio and Scottie Provan Big Hits

This week's vaudeville and picture show opened to an audience that taxed even the large seating capacity of Music Hall.

The "Blue Ribbon Trio" in their laughing sketch, "Selling an Elephant" are the headliners, and they got a great hand. Their act is funny throughout, and the antics of the elephant are side splitting. The female members of the trio sing the big Boston hit, "Go Easy Mable."

Scottie Provan, a Scotch violinist, gave an exhibition of trick violin playing, and then gave an imitation of Harry Gardner, in one of his famous songs.

"Art" Spaulding sang, "Take Me Out for a Joy Ride"; this one is a knockout, and "The Flag That's Yours and Mine." He got several encores on both.

The picture program includes, "On the Brinks of the Precipice," "Inviting His Boss to Dinner," "Hungary and 'Lewis XVII'."

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony of Portsmouth People Stands the Test

The test of time is what tells it. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Portsmouth people appreciate merit and many months ago local editors publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as reasonable as a cure that bears its trial the every sufferer from kidney trouble is looking for.

Clinton R. Hurd, 25 Hill St., Portsmouth, N. H., says: "Three years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and suffered terribly from backache. It was almost impossible for me to do any work when the trouble was at its height and I always felt tired. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at Philbrick's drug store, corrected all the difficulties arising from my kidneys. During the time that has since elapsed, I have been asked scores of times about Doan's Kidney Pills and have always been pleased to tell of the great benefit I derived from this remedy. I cannot give Doan's Kidney Pills too much praise and recommend them at every opportunity."

SHIFTED HIS MILLIONS FROM STATE TO STATE

Methuen Millionaire When Taxed in Massachusetts Moved Along Into New Hampshire.

Methuen, Mass., May 17.—The local assessors have learned how Edward F. Searies established a legal residence in Windham, N. H., thus shifting his $250,000 property out of their jurisdiction and saving himself $20,000 in taxes, without going outside of his own fences.

His vast estate is situated on both sides of the boundary of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and the millionaire simply moved into a house of one of his farm superintendents, three miles north, for two or three days, and is now back in his Methuen palace.

It is now evident that even though the tax commissioners were justified in ordering the assessors of this town to value his personal property at about $10,000,000, rather than the $20,000 he was valued, the local board were right in their prediction that the eccentric philanthropist would quit the town entirely if his assessment were put up to the $10,000,000 figure.

It is probable, now that the state has forever lost the right to tax his millions.

The assessors refused last year to comply with the request of the tax commission, and a notable controversy resulted, which was even carried up to Attorney General Malone for settlement. The state board ever threatened to have the assessors ousted from office unless Searies was rated at his real millions.

The millionaire seemed secure, so far as the town authorities were concerned, who gave him every inducement to remain within their jurisdiction, but he seemed to discount a possible jump in his assessment this year.

Mr. Searies was a poor Methuen boy and later became a house decorator. In this way he met Mrs. Mark Hopkins, widow of the Southern Pacific railroad magnate. They married, and from a house decorator working for a small salary he became master of $25,000,000. Mrs. Hopkins was already well along in years, it being her third marital venture, and she died a short time after her marriage to Mr. Searies in 1887.

EXAMINING WARRANT MACHINISTS.

Are Preliminary to Entering New Grade.

As a preliminary to their advancement of the newly created grade of chief machinist, twelve warrant machinists from the Portsmouth navy yard and warships there, together with about as many more from the Cranston yard and ship in commission there, were Monday morning examinations at the Cranston yard. It has now decided to advance with the grade of warrant machinist and in order to establish the fitness of the new men now in their places for the older title the tests are being conducted. A special board of examiners of which Lieutenant Commander Frank Lyon, U. S. N., of the Portsmouth New Jersey, is the president, is conducting the tests.

WANT A GAME WITH THE PORTSMOUTH TEAM.

Members of the Elks Team Think they have a Fine Bunch of Bowlers.

The members of the Elks are anxious for an all-Elks bowling team with the idea of getting a match with the Portsmouth team. The team would include such bowlers as Pass, Carley, Lyons, Stilson, Hanson, Bonders and Gray, out of which a team of five men could be made up that would make the Portsmouth team go along some. The present Portsmouth team is composed of Allen, Mitchell, Wood, Cerny and Renner, all good bowlers, and a match between the two would be one of great interest.

Buffalo Bill's Hearty Tribute

Cured of Rheumatism by Kickapoo Sagwa and Kickapoo Oil.

He Unhesitatingly Endorses Them

Says they Cure Where a Cure is Possible, and that they are Unequaled.

There is no man in America whose knowledge of the Indians, their strong and their weak points, can compare with that of Hon. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill). The years he spent amongst the different tribes as an invaluable representative and counselor of the United States Government gave him a familiarity with their capabilities, skill, habits, and customs, which makes him the greatest living authority on all matters relating to Indians. With this wonderful knowledge what does Buffalo Bill do when taken sick? Does he consult some high-priced practitioner? Does he take some deadly mineral medicine? No. He does just what the humblest man can do as well as the richest. He resorts to the simple but wonderfully sure Kickapoo Sagwa, which is made from roots, herbs, gums, barks and leaves, whose formula was secured from the Indians. And what was the result? He was, to use his own words, "speedily cured." Here is what Col. Cody says:

"I have known of the virtues of the Kickapoo Remedies for a long time, on the frontier, and in the East they are considered indispensable to every household. I used Kickapoo Sagwa for Malaria, and chills, with the best results, it being far better for this trouble than quinine or any other remedy. I also used Kickapoo Sagwa and Kickapoo Oil for rheumatism, and was speedily and entirely cured. You may use my name and say for what they are recommended the Kickapoo Remedies have no equal."

Sufferers, after reading such tribute from such a man, can you hesitate? If you have kidney, liver, heart, or stomach trouble, rheumatism, impoverished blood, constipation, or nervous disorders, Kickapoo Sagwa will surely cure you, and it won't leave any unpleasant after effects either like mineral medicines do. Sagwa is sold in 50 cents and $1.00 bottles.

Kickapoo Oil, the healing family liniment, which is sold at the people's price of 25 cents a bottle, should be in your household. It stops all pain, muscular or nervous, and cures the cause. For bumps, bruises, earache, toothache, neuralgia, cramps, colic, sprains, strains, headache, weak back, and all acute pain, external or internal, it is without a rival. All Kickapoo Remedies are sold everywhere. Take no substitute, for no remedies are "just as good." The Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., Clintonville, Conn.

CITY BRIEFS

There were rallies enough about the city yesterday to suit anybody.

Monday was a cold and disagreeable day, the kind that made a furrow in the feet good.

Many of the men of the Maine coast were last night renewing old acquaintances.

General Wood gave the forty in the New Castle side of the harbor a thorough schooling.

The public play ground will not be in commission this summer according to the present state of work.

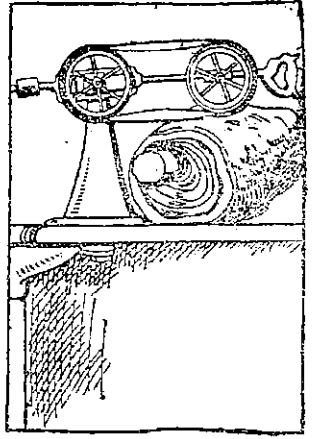

There are now more collected men at the Navy Yard than for any time in its history outside of the time of the Spanish prisoners.

ELECTRICAL MEAT SAW.

Operated by Connection With a Suitable Motor.

A great deal has been said about machinery entirely supplanting human labor at some far distant date. Close scrutiny of the thousands of devices patented weekly shows this to be true, as the majority of inventors are working on devices which do away entirely with hard labor. Even the familiar figure of the butcher patiently sawing off a leg of mutton or beef will soon be supplanted by an electrical meat saw invented by an Indiana man. As shown in the illustration, this meat saw consists of a revolving band saw, the operation being by power supplied from a suitable motor. The apparatus is complicated, but its operation is claimed to be very simple, little effort being required to manipulate and guide the saw. The work is quickly accomplished, and where large quantities of meat are handled much time is saved.

Strength of Crocodile's Jaws.

Sir Samuel Baker in his book on wild beasts says that the power of the jaws of the crocodile is terrific.

Once he had the metal of a large hook the thickness of ordinary telegraph wire completely bent together the barbed point being pressed tightly against the shank and rendered useless. This compression was caused by the snap of the crocodile's jaws when seizing a live duck which he had used as bait, the hook being fastened beneath the wing. On another occasion he found a fish weighing seventy pounds bitten clean through as if divided by a knife. This again was the work of the snapping jaws of a crocodile.

A Frenchman, Paul Bert, once made experiments on the strength of a crocodile's jaws by means of a dynamometer. He found that a crocodile weighing 120 pounds exerted a force of 308 pounds in closing his jaws. The lion has an enormous jaw power. An African traveler once pushed the butt end of his gun into a lion's mouth and the pressure of the jaws cracked it as though it had been struck by a steam hammer.

Completeness of French Census.

France is a country where the census assumes almost the elevation of high art. The cult of detail of the personal kind carries passion for statistics to its apotheosis. There is nothing like it in this country.

The timid bachelor who cares to know the Department in which women outnumber men, and are therefore least likely to reject a suitor; the woman yearning for matrimony who would learn where men are numerically the preponderant sex, and therefore compelled to respect the law of supply and demand, need only cast their eyes over these abundantly classified statistics.

Similarly, one may find at a glance which province or Department most inclines to bachelorhood or spinsterhood, which to widowhood and which to divorce; where the deaf and dumb come from, and where blindness is in fashion. This last is perhaps the most curious detail of all. Why, for instance, should there be 163 blind people to the 100,000 in Corsica and only 45 in the Department of Vienna.

The Opening of Tibet.

Now that trade, although on a small scale, is passing freely between Calcutta and Lhasa, the but rarely mysterious city of Tibet, it is reported that the people of Tibet exhibit eagerness to know more of the outside world. The outside world was long curious about them, and now the reverse occurs. But the Tibetans will not encounter the obstacles that we did to the gratification of their curiosity. A pass 14,500 feet high must be traversed in reaching Tibet from India, but the route is open all the year round, and the trip can be made without much difficulty by those who are accustomed to high altitudes. Tibet contains borax, silver, rock salt, iron, silver, copper, gold, turquoise and lapis-lazuli, besides mud and furs. A railroad over the Himalayas into Tibet is now suggested.

BEEES AND BEE KEEPING

HABITS OF CYPRIAN BEES.

Their grit and profligence make them a desirable variety.

Bees, like all other insects, are divided scientifically into general species and varieties. An old bee keeper by the name of Aristotle in days gone by speaks of three kinds of bees that were well known in his time. The best variety he describes as small and round and variegated in color. I wish to claim that this great and noble bee of which Aristotle speaks is no other than the Cyprian bee, for this reason, they are small and round bodied, quick in motion, sting upon the slightest provocation; they are the lightest colored bee of which I know, and the best workers. Says a writer in American Bee Journal.

The Cyprians were imported from the island of Cyprus into the different parts of Europe where agriculture was carried on, and they were so much praised and recommended that in 1890 importations began in America. The Cyprian resembles the Italian bee in habits, etc., the difference between them is that on the thorax of the Cyprian there is a brighter yellowish color than on the Italian and the yellow rings of the Cyprian are brighter and graduate to a copperish yellow under the abdomen.

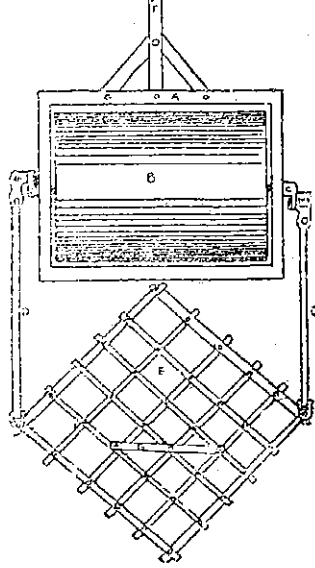

The drones of the Cyprians are beautiful and these bees quickly assail those who dare handle them. Smoke astonishes them, but does not subdue them. At each puff of the smoke they emit a shrill sound not easily forgotten and as soon as the smoke disappears they are again on the watch ready to pounce on any enemy, whether man or beast.

The Cyprian's courage and grit and profligence make them a very desirable variety if they could be handled safely. I have handled this race of bees for the last five or six years. I find them to be good comb builders and good honey gatherers and a splendid adversary when it comes to fighting. They are much inclined to rob other bees and they will fly out of the hives when other bees are quiet.

The Cyprians are usually rustling all the time, and if an apiarist does not mind a few stings, this race is, I think, the best honey gatherers I have ever tried. They are in my estimation equal to the Italians and better in some respects, especially in theappings of their combs, which are white and smooth and even. Italians, on the contrary, cap their cells over in a rough, uneven way, although they are the idolized bee of America to-day.

Roller and Vibrating Harrow.

The roller B is a large hard wood log, (but could be of iron) and is attached to the frame A by the cranks CC nine inches in diameter. The cranks are keyed upon the axle in opposite positions. Connected to the wrist pins of each crank are the connecting rods DD which are attached to opposite corners of the harrow, E, with universal joints, so as to allow of free working of all the parts and to permit the roller and harrow separately to accommodate themselves to the inequalities of the ground. It can easily be seen how the harrow is vibrated through the cranks in rotation with the roller.

If it is desired to have the last operation harrowing the implement should be used as shown in the sketch, but if desired to leave the ground rolled, then turn over the frame so that the tongue F rests on the cross piece G and attach the team by a chain to what will then be the front part of the harrow. The two can be disconnected and either used separately when desired.—Prairie Farmer.

HE ALMOST TREATED.

But Adolph Found It Was Not the Kind He Was Thinking About.

Two Germans were on their way to work, when one of them, Hans, observed their countryman, Schinder, on the other side of the street, sweeping the walk in front of his saloon.

"Adolph," said Hans, pointing to the saloon man, "just look at Schinder doing his own sweeping. By golly, he is der meaneast and stingiest man vat I see."

"No," retorted Adolph, "he is not so stingy as you think. He almost treated me vance."

"How do you make dot out?" questioned Hans. "How could he almost treated you vided doing it?"

"Vell, dat happened dis way," said Adolph. "Vone cold mornin' I dropped in Schinder's place and sat me down by der fire for a little varmeness, and Schinder was cleaning der bar up. He looked all der bottles from der shelves, viped them clean, and sat dem on der bar; der he took der glasses and did likewise; after dat he viped der shelves off, and put der clean bottles and glasses back. Ven dis work was finished he looked over to me and says: 'Vell, Adolph, vat are ve going to have?' Und just as I was going to say 'beer,' he says, 'vahn or snow?'"

Everything in Proportion.

For many weeks the irritable merchant had been riveted to his bed by typhoid fever. Now he was convalescing. He clamored for something to eat, declaring that he was starving. "To-morrow you may have something to eat," promised the doctor. The merchant realized that there would be a restraint to his appetite yet he saw in a vision a modest steaming meal placed at his bedside.

"Here is your dinner," said the nurse next day, as she gave the glowering patient a spoonful of tripe pudding, "and the doctor emphasizes that everything else you do must be in the same proportion."

Two hours later the nurse heard a frantic call from the bedchamber.

"Nurse," breathed the man, heavily, "I want to do some reading; bring me a postage stamp."—Harper's Weekly.

Made a Mistake That Time.

A benevolent old gentleman brimful of information saw a rustic sitting on a fence gazing earnestly at telegraph wires. Going up to the countryman, he said:

"Waiting to see a message go 'long, eh?"

The man grinned and said, "Ay."

The benevolent old gentleman, got on the wall, and for the next quarter of an hour tried hard to dispel his ignorance.

"Now," he said at last, "as you know something about the matter I hope you will spread your knowledge among your mates on the farm."

"But I don't work on a farm," replied the rustic citizen.

"Where, then, may I ask?"

"Me and my mates are telegraph linemen, and we are testing a new wire."

Taking a Substitute.

Being very close-listed, Mason had never allowed himself the costly habit of smoking, says Harper's Weekly. He always felt himself a lower when any one treated to cigars. But on one occasion, when the party he was with entered a stationary and cigar store, he made up his mind to have his share of the treat.

"Won't you have a smoke this time?" asked the leader.

"No, thank you," replied Mason; "but if you don't mind, I believe I'll take a pencil."

TOO PARTISAN TO ROLLER.

She Was Being Hugged but Martyr Like She Held Her Tongue.

Colonel W. P. Thorne, the amiable lieutenant-governor of Kentucky, is one of the best campaigners and story-tellers to be found in Kentucky. One of the best he is telling to his friends runs as follows:

"It was just after W. O. Bradley was elected governor of Kentucky, in 1905, and the Republicans in my county were holding a big ratification meeting. Brass bands, all kinds of floats and banners, and hundreds of men and women and boys had been parading the streets. A young girl claimed that, while standing on her front porch, which was almost covered by vines and foliage of different kinds, she was repeatedly hugged and kissed by a young man whom she hardly knew. A warrant was sworn out for her arrest. He was arrested and it was my duty as commonwealth's attorney, to prosecute him. John Carroll, who is at present a judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, had been employed to defend him. I soon finished my examination of the witness, and turned her over to Carroll for cross-examination.

"What night was this?" thundered Carroll.

"Thursday night," answered the witness.

"Thursday night, you say? What time of night?"

"About eight o'clock."

"That is about the time the parade was passing your house."

"Yes, sir; the parade was just passing my house."

"Streets full of people?"

"Yes, sir; the streets were full of people?"

"Did you ever cry out or scream?"

"No, sir; I did not."

"Will you please tell this jury," asked Carroll with rising voice, "with the streets thronged with people and this man hugging and kissing you against your will, as you claim, why you never uttered a single

FARM AND GARDEN

HOW MONGOLIANS FARM.

Methods of Cultivation Which Explain Why Famine Visits China,

One realizes the reason for the Chinese famine when the methods used by the Mongolians in cultivation are known. Farms range from half an acre to five acres, constitute the large and small holdings; it is clear they do not require reapers, mowers, threshing machines, or stent plows. The Chinese dead seem to have pre-emption rights over all the hills and hillsides, leaving only the plains and valleys to the living; even these are encroached upon by the coffins of past generations.

The people build dikes of mud enclosing say one-half an acre each.

After making them from three to six feet high to receive and retain the spring rains. Into the water they go, men, women and children, and work until their little farm is planted with rice. Most of their time after the spring rains are over is spent in treading the carrier pump, or bringing water and pouring it on the rice plants until the harvest time comes.

When wheat and barley is raised, the plow is a light affair, made of a crooked stick, with a steel point fastened to it, and is pulled by a water buffalo, a kind of half-breed between the Texan cattle and the Western buffalo. And loves to wallow in water. When he is used for plowing, they attach a rope to the machine and slip a rope around his neck; being powerful, and the plowing being shallow, he pulls the plow with the rope on one side.

The Chinaman plants wheat by sowing it. As it begins to show above ground, they gather up what convenient fertilizer they have at

When harvest time comes men and women take a blade inserted in a short handle at an angle of 45 degrees and proceed to cut the grain, bind it carefully, and carry it to the threshing floor, where the buffalo tramps and rolls the grain out of the ear, after which the wind is allowed to blow the chaff away.

The favorable point in the ladder represented are its strength which makes it possible to be used by anyone, and its light weight which enables a child to move it readily from place to place.

Laying Down Nursery Stock.

How many orchardists among the newer planters of this country know how to lay down and cover nursery stock in the fall for planting the following spring? Select a dry spot where no water will stand during the winter and with no grass near to attract mice. Dig a trench wide enough to admit one layer of roots and sloping enough to enable the trees to lie at an angle of not more than thirty degrees and pointing to the southward. After placing one layer of roots in the trench cover with meadow earth, rurnise well up on the holes and pack it firmly. Then add another layer of trees overlapping the first, cover as before and continue the process until all are heeled in. When that is done bend the tops to the ground and cover entirely with soil. Then dig a trench around the mound to carry off water. When finished the whole should have a smooth, symmetrical appearance. As early as possible in the spring uncover the tops of the trees so they may have light and air. Then leave them until they can be planted.

Milk for the Calf.
If it is desired to raise a calf, give it milk fresh from the cow, and warm the vessels to be scrupulously clean. If scours occur give a tablespoonful of ground dried blood once a day. Linseed meal jelly is also wholesome but let the calf depend mostly upon the warm, fresh milk.

HOSPITAL SHIP COMMANDER

Shall He Be a Surgeon or an Officer of the Line

Washington, May 18.—Whether at doctor shall command a naval vessel—the question that bothered President Roosevelt, but which he finally decided in the affirmative—is again before President Taft. It arose last year in connection with the hospital ship Relief, Surgeon-General Rixey, who was also the family physician at the White House insisted that Surgeon Stokes, in charge of the medical department of the ship, should be designated as the commander.

Officers of the line, who had spent years at Annapolis and years more in navigation, objected. President Roosevelt yielded to the pressure of the personal friendship of his family physician.

Surgeon General, or Admiral, Rixey, has now brought up the same question in the case of the hospital ship Solace. He insists that Surgeon General Pickrell, who will be chief of the medical staff on board, shall command the vessel. The present head of the navigation bureau, Admiral Pillsbury, and the man who will succeed him July 1, Admiral Potter, oppose such a course. When Mr. Taft became president he transferred the medical attendance of the White House from the navy to the army, and Dr. Rixey no longer is one of the White House family. The line officers prophesy that a doctor will not again command a ship.

FURTHER CONSIDERATION

For The Sperry Reports in Places Where There are Differences

Washington, May 18.—Secretary Meyer has decided to put into effect at once all the recommendations, in which the members were unanimous, which were made by the Sperry board to reconcile discrepancies in the naval regulations of 1909 with the first chapter of those regulations which were revised by Ex-Secretary Newberry in carrying out his plans of naval reorganization.
The Sperry board handed to the secretary a majority and a minority report on this subject.
Where the board was not unanimous in its efforts to reconcile the regulations with the plan outlined by Mr. Newberry the separate reports will be considered further by Secretary Meyer.
